

New Page 1

To Sports Service

Let us hold the World Cup more professionally!
A proposal regarding holding the FIFA World Cup.

Greetings,

Along this World Cup, let us hold a # super professional World Cup.

Introduction:

The FIFA World Cup is going to be 100 years old in a few years, and we shall create foundational changes and a general overhaul in holding the World Cup as well as its preliminary grouping. In this respect, we have prepared a plan that will be sent to you and some other reputed #newspapers, #magazines and #news agencies in order to be published with mentioning the source, if wished.

In the recent World Cup, strong teams such as Italy, the Netherlands, etc. were not treated as so due to their geographical positions; on the other hand, some less strong teams assured spots in the greatest #FIFA World Cup only because of their geographical and continental positions as well as spending substantial amounts of money; therefore, this must be revised and fundamentally reformed. The way the World Cup is being held is #amateurish, but if FIFA insists on maintaining the same style, we #propose that a #novel World Cup be held two years after the traditional World Cup, where only professional and strong teams would make their way to the main and final stage.

Super FIFA World Cup

Using the plan propounded herein, the teams shall be selected more professionally and the stronger countries be better scattered in the world in the preliminary stage.

Proposal text:

According to the FIFA ranking, the top ten teams in the world are selected as the group leader. Then, the next ten teams in the ranking, i.e. from the eleventh to the twentieth, are selected under the category of these top ten teams by drawing lots. The next deciles are also selected using this method. If, for example, there are 150 countries in the professional competition, each group shall consist of 15 teams, each of which being from a decile of FIFA ranking. That is, each group will include #European, #American, #African and #Asian teams in a sporadically distributed manner, and the ranking in #FIFA will be fairer. This way, each group would consist of very strong, strong, medium and weak teams. The groups will play their matches periodically. For example, all fifteen teams in Group 1 will play against each other in a country of one of the teams of the group chosen as the host. The team that obtains the highest score in each group will reach the final stage as the group leader, gaining the right to reach the main competitions of the World Cup in a more deserving and professional manner.

This method ensures that the ten countries that would pave their way to the final stage of the World Cup would be fully tested. It is noteworthy that the number of the teams can be increased to 15 or 20.

The main and final stage of the World Cup will be held in the previously selected host country. The ten high-scoring teams will compete with each other periodically; i.e. all ten countries will face each other in #professional and #breath-taking competitions until the true champion of the Super World Cup is revealed.

Basically, the "#Super League of the World Cup" will be held.
Battles_of_Gladiators!

Some additional suggestions in this regard:

1. All national matches will be held at the end of the year.

In order to prevent any interferences with the matches of the national and club teams, FIFA shall prepare a new plan, according to which all club matches around the world would be held in two 4-or-5-month-long half seasons. This ensures that all club matches would be finished within 9-10 months and all national team competitions (the World Cup, National Cup, etc.) would be held within 2-3 months so that there would not be any interference between the matches of the club and national teams. In this way, the players can focus on either club matches or national competitions depending on the season without any other concern. In this context, the number of the teams in club competitions should be adjusted in a way that they would be finished within 10 months.

Furthermore, this last two or three months of the year is a proper opportunity for clubs to participate in friendly competitions, regional and miscellaneous tournaments to recover and maintain their performance.

2. The reserve players of each team will increase.

Regarding the increase in the number of the matches of the club and national teams in the last few decades as well as the immense mental and physical pressure on #football players, it is suggested that the law concerning the number of reserve players be changed and doubled.

It is obvious that the number of substitutions should also be doubled, even being increased to 10 per match so that coaches can have more freedom of action in competitions. In this manner, more stars would be present in each team, and the restrictions regarding their entrance to the match would also be reduced. In this context, an increase in the population and consequently, the number of professional players can be entertained.

Benefits and results of this plan and method of holding competitions:

1- It would be a boon for football fans and players because regarding the increase in the number of matches in the preliminary and final stages, the fans would be provided with more matches of the World Cup, and the teams would have ample opportunity to rest until the next match.

2- Elimination matches would be abolished, and the teams that turn out to be the World Cup phenomena can face stronger teams without stress.

3- The fate of a team would not be determined by a single penalty, and a single match would not turn into a matter of life and death for that team. This can curb tensions and tempers in competitions.

4- As the competition will be held periodically and in a group-based manner, all teams would attend the competitions up to the last day of the World Cup, so the audience can enjoy the performance of all good teams, players, phenomena, stars, and superstars. In other words, the countries with strong and professional football teams would qualify for the World Cup, whether the country is a football legend or a new phenomenon in football. This ensures that the audience would witness pure and dreamy football played by superpowers such as Brazil, Germany, Argentina, Italy, Spain, England, the Netherlands, etc. in the main and final stage.

5- If a small or developing country becomes the host of a group, several measures can be adopted to provide part of the costs and expenses of the host with the help of FIFA and the United Nations. The presence of great and high-ranking teams in this country can help to globalize football and contribute directly and indirectly to the advancement of peace and democracy.

6- With the presence of 10 countries in the final stage, the quality, rather than the quantity, of the competitions would be enhanced as the champions shall achieve this stage with great difficulty. The number of the teams of the final stage can be increased to the desired level with further experience.

7- As the number of the competitions in the preliminary stage increases, the World Cup fever, with its popular teams and stars, would affect the world in a vaster and more homogenous manner. The attendance of a greater number of locals as well as tourists to more competitions would facilitate cultural interactions and ameliorate the tourism of the hosting country with providing a spectacular source of income.

8- Holding the matches of the preliminary stage in the mentioned ten countries would enhance the quality of the competitions as there would be no need for many round-trip matches, and the number of extra travels, players' travel fatigue and travel expenses of the teams would be reduced.

Regards,
Mr. Golzang, Manager of Golzang website
2021/3/3
Source: Golzang.com
@GOLZANG

New Page 1

To Sports Service

Let us hold the World Cup more professionally!
A proposal regarding holding the FIFA World Cup.

Greetings,
Along this World Cup, let us hold a # super professional World Cup.

Introduction:

The FIFA World Cup is going to be 100 years old in a few years, and we shall create foundational changes and a general overhaul in holding the World Cup as well as its preliminary grouping. In this respect, we have prepared a plan that will be sent to you and some other reputed #newspapers, #magazines and #news agencies in order to be published with mentioning the source, if wished.

In the recent World Cup, strong teams such as Italy, the Netherlands, etc. were not treated as so due to their geographical positions; on the other hand, some less strong teams assured spots in the greatest #FIFA World Cup only because of their geographical and continental positions as well as spending substantial amounts of money; therefore, this must be revised and fundamentally reformed. The way the World Cup is being held is #amateurish, but if FIFA insists on maintaining the same style, we #propose that a #novel World Cup be held two years after the traditional World Cup, where only professional and strong teams would make their way to the main and final stage.

Super FIFA World Cup

Using the plan propounded herein, the teams shall be selected more professionally and the stronger countries be better scattered in the world in the preliminary stage.

Proposal text:

According to the FIFA ranking, the top ten teams in the world are selected as the group leader. Then, the next ten teams in the ranking, i.e. from the eleventh to the twentieth, are selected under the category of these top ten teams by drawing lots. The next deciles are also selected using this method. If, for example, there are 150 countries in the professional competition, each group shall consist of 15 teams, each of which being from a decile of FIFA ranking. That is, each group will include #European, #American, #African and #Asian teams in a sporadically distributed manner, and the ranking in #FIFA will be fairer. This way, each group would consist of very strong, strong, medium and weak teams. The groups will play their matches periodically. For example, all fifteen teams in Group 1 will play against each other in a country of one of the teams of the group chosen as the host. The team that obtains the highest score in each group will reach the final stage as the group leader, gaining the right to reach the main competitions of the World Cup in a more deserving and professional manner.

This method ensures that the ten countries that would pave their way to the final stage of the World Cup would be fully tested. It is noteworthy that the number of the teams can be increased to 15 or 20.

The main and final stage of the World Cup will be held in the previously selected host country. The ten high-scoring teams will compete with each other periodically; i.e. all ten countries will face each other in #professional and #breath-taking competitions until the true champion of the Super World Cup is revealed.

Basically, the "#Super League of the World Cup" will be held.

Battles_of_Gladiators!

Some additional suggestions in this regard:

1. All national matches will be held at the end of the year.

In order to prevent any interferences with the matches of the national and club teams, FIFA shall prepare a new plan, according to which all club matches around the world would be held in two 4-or-5-month-long half seasons. This ensures that all club matches would be finished within 9-10 months and all national team competitions (the World Cup, National Cup, etc.) would be held within 2-3 months so that there would not be any interference between the matches of the club and national teams. In this way, the players can focus on either club matches or national competitions depending on the season without any other concern. In this context, the number of the teams in club competitions should be adjusted in a way that they would be finished within 10 months.

Furthermore, this last two or three months of the year is a proper opportunity for clubs to participate in friendly competitions, regional and miscellaneous tournaments to recover and maintain their performance.

2. The reserve players of each team will increase.

Regarding the increase in the number of the matches of the club and national teams in the last few decades as well as the immense mental and physical pressure on #football players, it is suggested that the law concerning the number of reserve players be changed and doubled.

It is obvious that the number of substitutions should also be doubled, even being increased to 10 per match so that coaches can have more freedom of action in competitions. In this manner, more stars would be present in each team, and the restrictions regarding their entrance to the match would also be reduced. In this context, an increase in the population and consequently, the number of professional players can be entertained.

Benefits and results of this plan and method of holding competitions:

1- It would be a boon for football fans and players because regarding the increase in the number of matches in the preliminary and final stages, the fans would be provided with more matches of the World Cup, and the teams would have ample opportunity to rest until the next match.

2- Elimination matches would be abolished, and the teams that turn out to be the World Cup phenomena can face stronger teams without stress.

3- The fate of a team would not be determined by a single penalty, and a single match would not turn into a matter of life and death for that team. This can curb tensions and tempers in competitions.

4- As the competition will be held periodically and in a group-based manner, all teams would attend the competitions up to the last day of the World Cup, so the audience can enjoy the performance of all good teams, players, phenomena, stars, and superstars. In other words, the countries with strong and professional football teams would qualify for the World Cup, whether the country is a football legend or a new phenomenon in football. This ensures that the audience would witness pure and dreamy football played by superpowers such as Brazil, Germany, Argentina, Italy, Spain, England, the Netherlands, etc. in the main and final stage.

5- If a small or developing country becomes the host of a group, several measures can be adopted to provide part of the costs and expenses of the host with the help of FIFA and the United Nations. The presence of great and high-ranking teams in this country can help to globalize football and contribute directly and indirectly to the advancement of peace and democracy.

6- With the presence of 10 countries in the final stage, the quality, rather than the quantity, of the competitions would be enhanced as the champions shall achieve this stage with great difficulty. The number of the teams of the final stage can be increased to the desired level with further experience.

7- As the number of the competitions in the preliminary stage increases, the World Cup fever, with its popular teams and stars, would affect the world in a vaster and more homogenous manner. The attendance of a greater number of locals as well as tourists to more competitions would facilitate cultural interactions and ameliorate the tourism of the hosting country with providing a spectacular source of income.

8- Holding the matches of the preliminary stage in the mentioned ten countries would enhance the quality of the competitions as there would be no need for many round-trip matches, and the number of extra travels, players' travel fatigue and travel expenses of the teams would be reduced.

Regards,

Mr. Golzang, Manager of Golzang website

2021/3/3

Source: Golzang.com

@GOLZANG

